By GEORGE LEONOF

AFTER much heart-searching between the devil of German participation in a European army and the deep blue sea of a German national army, both in Britain and France the Socialist leadership decided on the former as the lesser evil. Rank and file Socialists in both countries were frankly advised, since some form of German rearmament appeared inevitable to overcome their essential economic and political subject. On both sides of the Channel the official Socialist policy was backed by a solid section of the membership which, however, always seemed to fall short of a convincing majority. It remains opposed by an influential minority, while the wavering are sufficient to deprive the leadership both in Britain and France of the confidence required to demand rigid party discipline on this score. Fortunately for Mr. Clement Attlee and Mr. Guy Mollet, this delicate situation has developed in the shadow of the Geneva conference, which has sidetracked all other political issues, and under this benevolent twilight Mr. Mollet is content to let matters ride, while Mr. Attlee has even managed to back-pedal.

When the British Labour Party leadership last February came out in favour of the European Defence Community, the fraternal party in Paris was still undecided, and eventually secured Mr. Attlee's backing. Mr. Attlee in mid-April served to accommodate the sharp division within the party on this question, and on May 15 the National Executive took up the stick with a resolution declaring that major decisions of the Executive were binding on all members, and that it decreed otherwise. Last week it decreed otherwise, in deference to the conscientious objection of some members to restoring arms to German hands.

The French Socialists staged their showdown on the question at a special congress voted by 1,900 to 1,215 that its parliamentary representatives should vote for ratification of the European Defence Community. But failure of the congress to demand unconditional obedience to this decision makes it extremely doubtful whether a majority of the 104 Socialist Deputies in the 527-member National Assembly will go along with the decision. No less than 100 Deputies are known to be opposed, and of the remainder, nearly a third are uncertain. In fact, if the local federations represented at the special congress, 41 voted against ratification, and the motion was passed only because of the "big battalions" of the federations backing Mr. Mollet.

ON the Eastern questions the British Labour Party is not only more united within itself, but both wings have been generous in their praise of Foreign Secretary Eden's conduct at Geneva. On the other hand, Labour is coming in for criticism for what both Tory and Liberal circles have described as the ill-thought decision to send an eight-man delegation to the People's Republic of China in August. The main objection is that the tour is certain to be interpreted in America as a move for closer relations between British Labour and the Peking Government. The fact that the delegation is to be led by Mr. Attlee, and that it includes, besides Mr. Bevan, such loyal right-wingers as Dr. Edith Summerskill, former Minister of Health, and Mr. George Brown, former Party Chairman, is regarded as all the more unfortunate.

LABOUR has not considered it necessary to defend itself against this criticism. However, it is believed certain that Mr. Bevan would have gone to China anyway, whether as a member of a representative Labour delegation or not. If this is the case, it would have been difficult for Mr. Attlee to permit a situation in which Mr. Bevan, on his return, might claim to be the sole authoritative spokesman about conditions in China.

Histadrut Accounts Civil Service Wages

JERUSALEM Post Reporter
The Histadrut scale of pay will apply to employees of the Histadrut except that grades one (IL-100), two (IL-120) and three (IL-150) will not be instituted. The Central Committee of the Histadrut Executive resolved at its last meeting.

Accordingly, the basic salary in the Histadrut will begin at IL-60 and reach a maximum of IL-170. The scale will have 11 grades as compared with 15 in the Civil Service. It is retroactive to January 1, 1964. The new scale means an increase for most workers. In those cases where the new scale is lower, the previous salary will continue.

Israel Quits As Syria MAC Exceeds Powers

TEL AVIV, Wednesday. — The Israel delegation left the Israel-Syrian Mixed Armistice Commission this afternoon, when it became evident that the MAC was going to vote on an incident which had occurred in the demilitarized zone.

A Syrian resolution condemning Israel was later reportedly adopted by two Syrian votes, the Chairman voting with the Syrians.

The Israel delegation will return to the MAC for any meeting dealing with issues which are under the MAC's jurisdiction. Syrian-Arabic, Senior Israeli officer for the MAC's, told correspondents here tonight.

Today's meeting was held in the Syrian Consulate across the Jordan, and lasted for over five hours. The Shimalina incident in the demilitarized zone was the first item on the agenda. The Israel delegation pressed that it should be struck off, quoting precedents which showed that incidents which had occurred in the demilitarized zone were to be submitted to the sole jurisdiction of the MAC's Chairman. The Syrian-Arabic delegation, on the other hand, insisted that the incident was to be dealt with by the MAC's Chairman.

A resolution of the Security Council of May 15, 1961, called on both Israel and Syria to submit their grievances to the MAC or to the Chairman of the MAC. The Israel delegation also recalled a statement given by the Syrian delegates to the MAC on May 15, 1961, who admitted that the Chairman alone was responsible for the implementation of the Armistice Agreement in the demilitarized zone.

The Israel Delegation proposed a resolution expressing readiness to settle any claim resulting from the Shimalina incident. The Syrian delegation, however, insisted that the incident was to be dealt with by the MAC's Chairman. The Israel delegation also recalled a statement given by the Syrian delegates to the MAC on May 15, 1961, who admitted that the Chairman alone was responsible for the implementation of the Armistice Agreement in the demilitarized zone.

The Israel delegation's general line was that the armistice agreement being an accepted document, the Syrians were required by a majority vote of the MAC. If the Syrians wished to introduce changes in the agreement, they might seek to do so by mutual consent with Israel only.

Work Plan Passed to Committee After Dispute Over Subsidies

JERUSALEM Post Reporter
The Ministry of Labour Employment Plan was passed to the Knesset Labour Committee yesterday for further study.

In the continuation of the debate, the Minister's summing up two clearly differentiated trends made themselves felt among Coalition speakers. The difference is not between the general proposals for development schemes to take surplus town labour to agricultural areas, but with the question of whether the scheme should be paid for out of money saved by the Government in abolishing the food subsidies.

General Zionist Members strongly opposed to the abolition of food subsidies because it would mean a further general rise in prices. They are angry because the abolition of the subsidies would be an injustice to the poorer sections of the population and who ask for more radical measures, such as a compulsory loan.

Within Mafpat, equally vigorous support is given to the abolition on the principle that the state should not be a net consumer of goods but should serve them in their entirety for development purposes.

Mr. Z. Aranne, Minister without Portfolio, said that 20% of the population did not have proper work at present and lived in poverty. More than three-quarters of these unemployed and partially employed persons were immigrants from Oriental countries. This was a failure to absorb immigrants and move them into a single nation that posed the most serious problems in every respect, not excluding national security. The plan proposed by the Ministry of Labour offered production in every branch.

Dr. George S. Wise, Chairman of the University's Board of Governors, followed by conveying "the heartfelt greetings of Professor Albert Einstein."

US Army Technicians To Be Recalled from Indo-China

Full-Scale War Rages in Delta

WASHINGTON, Wednesday. — The U.S. Defense Department said today that the 330 Air Force technicians sent in February to aid the French in the Indo-China war will be withdrawn from Indo-China this month.

The withdrawal of the technicians has not yet started, a Department spokesman said.

The Administration gave the command a June withdrawal after Congressional leaders protested the sudden dispatch of American military personnel to the war zone without advance consultation with Congressional committees.

The U.S. action came as a result of a June 1 withdrawal after French troops began fighting a full-scale war today in the rice fields and villages of the Red River delta, where fighting suddenly flared up in Southern Indo-China.

French headquarters announced tonight that the Vietnamese had captured an outpost and a nearby military tower only 18 kms. from Saigon. The Vietnamese began a series of attacks last night around the city but most of these were beaten off.

Saigon's city centre was shaken by exploding shells today when one of the key ammunition supply dumps for the French forces caught fire. A French spokesman said there had been no attack on the dump, but an inquiry into the possibility of sabotage was being held.

An armada of 50 aircraft blasted about 20 kms. south-east of Hanoi and wiped it out before dawn. Fighter-bombers flew south to the embattled outpost of Chai Noi and helped the garrison beat off attacks by Vietnamese troops for the fifth straight night. Patrols along the Hanoi-Haiphong road and the Hanoi-Lao Cai road were strengthened to prevent the Vietnamese, who seized a post on the road 15 kms. east of Hanoi, from stopping the flow of U.S. war material to regrouping French Union forces.

Rival Army Heads Pore Over Maps

GENEVA, Wednesday (Reuters). — French and Vietnamese army officers pored over maps today at the start of talks to find a cease-fire line in the seven-year-old Indo-China war.

Part of the meeting was taken up with discussion on which matters should be handled in Geneva and which should be tackled on the spot. As they tackled the problem of marking the boundaries, the Soviet political delegation, a step further and discussed control of an armistice.

Conferees sources said M. Georges Bidault, French Foreign Minister, asked for clarification of "neutrality" following Russia's suggestion on Monday that Poland and Czechoslovakia should join India and Pakistan on an Indo-China neutral armistice commission. Mr. Walter Bedell Smith, head of the American delegation, said that the Communist nations could not be as neutral, these sources added.

But neither he nor M. Bidault today had made any counter-proposals for membership of a neutral commission to supervise an armistice. The delegates met for nearly four hours in an adjoining conference room. Mr. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Minister, presided. Another meeting will be held tomorrow. Mr. Molotov, back from a three-day trip to Moscow, had a long meeting with Mr. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, before the secret session.
